HUGHES CHAMPION OF ALL VACILLATORS, DECLARES GLYNN IN STIRRING TALK

Cites Republican Criticism of Wilson As Applicable to Critics, in Renomination Speech for Vice President Thomas R. Marshall.

Indianapolis, Sept. 15.—Martin H. Glynn in his speech notifying Thomas R. Marshall of his nomination as the Democratic candidate for vice-president here tonight, summed up the results of the administration of Woodrow Wilson, replied to the critics of the present administration and set forth the reasons why he believed Mr. Wilson and Mr. Marshall should be re-elected. He said, in part:

"There is something peculiarly benefiting in a man from New York heading this committee to do honor to a son of Indiana.

"Thirty-two years ago, after a long unbroken series of defeats, the Democratic party under the leadership of a man from New York and a man from Indiana won an inspirational victory that put new heart and new life into the democracy of the nation."

Mr. Glynn described the Wilson administration as one "that in efficiency of service and in responsiveness to popular will, has had no rival in this country in the last fifty years."

Concerning it he said: "The historian of the future will say that into the laws of the nation were written not only the pledges of the Democratic platform, but the pledges of the Progressive platform and the pledges of the Republican platform that served public interests and fostered public welfare."

Assessing that Woodrow Wilson would be the next President and Mr. Marshall the next vice-president, Mr. Glynn said that the most potent reason therefore "lies in the great human appeal of the policy and performance of the administration in which you have been second in command."

Summing up the results of the Wilson administration, Mr. Glynn defined them as follows:

"No longer will the hearts of little children be coined into gold or their blood stain the commerce of our land; no longer will the poetry of youth be robbed of its glamor or its song of joy transformed into a lamentation of despair.

"No longer will the sowers of our seed and the reapers of our harvest be denied proper place in the sun of our financial world.

"No longer will widows and orphans, robbed of their pittance of savings, beat their clenched fists in vain upon the doors of banks closed by manufactured panics.

"No longer will any man or set of men be able to corner the money market, or take the country's business by the throat and force it to deliver to their financial pressure."

Concerning some of the issues of the campaign, Mr. Glynn said:

"In their search for an issue grasshoppers never hopped as our opponents have hopped, chameleons never changed their hues as our opponents have changed their cries in this campaign."

"They are like the 'Huma,' the bird of perpetual motion that never lights on land or sea but is always on the wing.

"First they create an issue out of 'Americanism.' But as soon as they see the people know that Woodrow Wilson is doing today in our foreign affairs exactly what Washington and Adams and Jefferson and Lincoln and Grant did under similar circumstances—why, our Republican friends hop again, change their hue, raise new cries and like the Huma keep on the wing.

"Then Mexico becomes their issue. But as soon as they see the country knows the Mexican situation is an inheritance from a Republican administration, and that in his dealings with Mexico Woodrow Wilson is pursuing the same course that Abraham Lincoln and President Taft pursued under similar circumstances—why, our Republican friends hop again, change their hue, raise new cries and like the Huma keep on the wing.

"Then they fail to criticizing the Pershing expedition against Villa and the mobilization of the troops on the border. But as soon as they see that the people remember President Taft's mobilization order in 1912 and that the armed forces from the United States invaded Spanish and Mexican territory on ten different occasions for offenses identical with that which Villa committed against this country—why our Republican friends hop again, change their hue, raise new cries and like the Huma keep on the wing.

"Then they attack the recent eight-hour law for railroads. They make as much noise about this as mossback conservatives made eighty years ago over President Van Buren's ten-hour law and they probably will achieve the same negative result. And since Monday last they have been trying to make an issue out of the state election up in Maine as a repudiation of the Wilson policies and a forecast of national Republican victory. But this contention will not hold water. The average Republican majority in Maine was 33,164, and yet on Monday last, the Republicans carry it by only 13,000.

"This same kind of a Republican victory would swing New York to Wilson by 250,000. The falling off of the Republican vote in Maine is 20 per cent from the vote of four years ago. If this percentage prevails throughout the country on next election day, Woodrow Wilson will carry every doubtful state in the nation.

"Then they make an issue out of 'presidential vacillation.' Vacillation, the other name is the name of the present Republican candidate for President! Between his statements as to why a Supreme Court justice should not and could not become a candidate for president, and his double quick time rush to accepting the nomination, he veered like a tin weather cock in a cross-cross windstorm. In side stepping and pussy-footing all around this issue, he was as bad as the man in the perplexities of the famous old railroad ditty of 'On Again, Off Again, Gone Again, Finnergan.'"

"President Wilson or any other man has got to do some vacillating in order to keep up with the Republican candidate for President as the champion vacillator of the political arena."

"The fact remains, said Mr. Glynn, "that under a Democratic President and a Democratic Congress this country is enjoying the greatest prosperity with its existence. The business is here, the work is here, the money is here and no prophecy of our opponents can puff them away. Our banks are stacked with money, our mills are filled with orders, our farms revel in prosperity as they never revelled before. And the song of this prosperity, the hum of this industry is better than all the war songs in the world."

To maintain our national honor by peace, if we can but by war if we must," declared Mr. Glynn. "Is the motto of Woodrow Wilson. The result of the form of Mr. Wilson's negotiations with the warring nations of Europe is that while Europe is drenched in the blood of a sinister war we are enjoying the blessings of an honorable peace. The men in society's salons, lettered dilettantes in libraries and swaggering devotees of fashion who would fight out battles on the carpet of parlor trenches, in the restaurants of clubs, or amid the dangers of afternoon teas, may be primarily interested in the form of our diplomatic negotiations. But the men who must fight our battles where the cannon roars and bullets sing and death stalks—and their sons, their daughters and their mothers—they are primarily interested in the result of our negotiations and not in the form of our negotiations. They would do the fighting stand where Woodrow Wilson stands."

WILSON BLAZED NEW PATH, SAYS VICE PRESIDENT

Thomas R. Marshall Praises Executive In Accepting Renomination

Indianapolis, Ind., Sept. 15.—Thomas R. Marshall formally accepted the Democratic renomination for the vice-presidency here tonight, not for additional honor, he said, "but in the hope that I may assist in the re-election of Woodrow Wilson who has not walked where the path has been, but who has walked where there was no path and who has left a trail."

In a speech of acceptance phrased in characteristic vein, the vice president sketched briefly the leadership achievements of the administration, in which he said he had been "an onlooker," and eulogized the president as "the man who brooded over the Republic in storm tossed times and by mere words spoke peace on the troubled seas of international politics."

A changed administration, he declared, would not dare repeat a single one of the important measures put on the statute books since March 4, 1913. Wanting an issue, he continued, the Republicans had turned to foreign affairs, citing such phrases as "Foreign Americanism" which they could not define.

"The American people this year have made their own issue," said Mr. Marshall. "Those that the parties present may be only side issues. The real issue of this campaign is that thought which goes with the father to his work or business, which engrosses every mother, wife or sweetheart, which sits down with them at every fireside and goes to bed with them in every home, and that thought is 'Can the president of the United States continue to so patiently manage our international affairs as to maintain honorable peace?'"

"The one bright, peaceful spot under the sun this day is America and it is so because the president pleaded guilty to the charge of using words rather than shot and shell and shrapnel. If America is to lead the world toward that now seemingly far distant goal where brute force shall be bound by wisdom and conscience in fetters, then we must have a plain break, then these are the hours for mere words."

The vice president made a caustic reference to the refusal of Theodore Roosevelt to accept the Progressive presidential renomination, declaring the former president was a leader whom he would lead at Armageddon, which he described as "Bull Moose Run," and now has "turned his back on the Holy Land."

He predicted that the issues put forward by the Republicans would not be accepted as such by the people in the present abnormal year, adding "You cannot enter a bedroom in the tariff nor a widow in the coffin trust."

The all-important question of what the Republicans would have done regarding the Lusitania, Mexico and Belgium, said the Vice President, had not been answered by the party's presidential candidates, Mr. Hughes. He added that "firm Americanism" should be categorically defined by those who had coined it, and declared the people would not be willing to discharge one doctor because he was criticized by another who offered no remedy.

"In my opinion," said Mr. Marshall, "the average American wants to know who is in the partnership with Candidate Hughes in this 'firm Americanism.' Does the firm consist of Hughes and Roosevelt, of Hughes and Hohenzollern, or of Hughes, surviving partner of the firm of Hughes and Huerta?"

MRS. T. J. MURPHY IS DEAD AT 47; ILL MANY MONTHS

Death Ends Long and Patient Suffering of Mother of Large Family.

Catherine M., wife of Col. Timothy J. Murphy, died this morning at her home, 36 Liberty street. Mrs. Murphy's death was not unexpected. She had been ill for a long time. The end came a few minutes before 9 o'clock this morning, with her husband and several children at her bedside.

Mrs. Murphy was taken ill more than a year ago, and underwent an operation that afforded her only temporary relief. With Spartan courage she bore her affliction, grieving more that she was compelled to forego her maternal solicitude for her large family, than for her suffering.

Born in Waterbury, 47 years ago, the daughter of Edward and the late Mary Ann Burns Crowley, she came to Bridgeport when five years of age. Her family resided here continuously since then, her father, Edward Crowley, who lately had resided at the Murphy home, having been an engineer for the New Haven road for many years.

Mrs. Murphy was widely known in this city. She attended Prospect street school, and took an active part in the affairs of St. Augustine's parish. Later, when the Sacred Heart parish was organized she was among the leaders of the young women of the parish in matters for the welfare of the new church.

Rev. James C. O'Brien of St. John's church, Stamford, then pastor of the Sacred Heart church, united Col. and Mrs. Murphy in marriage in January, 1893. Seven children blessed the union, Jeremiah, student in Notre Dame university; James, reporter for the Bridgeport Evening Farmer; Marie and Joseph, pupils in the Bridgeport high school, and Catherine, John and Thomas, pupils in the Sacred Heart school.

Mrs. Murphy was devoted to her family, and loved her home. She was not given much to social activities, finding more enjoyment in the family circle of her own household. She was a devout Catholic and aided generously in many projects of religious and of charitable nature. Notwithstanding her long illness she retained an unusually large number of intimates to whom her death is an irreparable loss.

Col. Murphy, the bereaved husband, is one of the best known Bridgeporters. He came here from Springfield about 30 years ago. He is one of the leaders in several of the Irish patriotic and fraternal organizations, and a colonel in the Hibernian Rifles. He recently sold his retail liquor store to the Bridgeport Savings bank, and now devotes his attention to the wholesale liquor business.

Besides her husband and children, Mrs. Murphy is survived by her father, four brothers, John Crowley of Bayonne, N. J.; Edward, of Bridgeport; Charles of Jersey City, and Vincent of Great Neck, L. I.

Funeral services will take place Monday morning, at the bereaved home at 9:00 and the Sacred Heart church at 9:30.

FAMILIES TO ACCOMPANY SOLDIERS TO GERMANY

Berlin, Sept. 15.—(By wireless to Sayville.)—The Vossische Zeitung says the officers of the first Greek army corps, which is to be transported from Kavala, Greece, to Germany, will be accompanied by their families, thus preventing the starving of women and children by the entente.

The official announcement which was made in Berlin yesterday of the plan to transport to Germany Greek troops stationed at Kavala at the time of the Bulgarian occupation of Eastern Macedonia. The announcement said the troops, cut off from communication with Athens by the entente forces, were suffering from disease and lack of food, and that they would be taken to Germany as neutrals. Athens despatches said 1,500 Greek soldiers had been removed from Kavala on warships of the allies.

Keeping Everlastingly On The Job Absolute Necessity Nowadays!

Laying Off Even One Day With Prevailing High Prices Puts a "Crimp" in the Pay Envelope.

Frank Mulvey, 121 High St., Relates His Experience.

In all large cities like Bridgeport the average citizen must keep everlastingly at it whether he feels like it or not, for with the prevailing high prices of foodstuffs it takes all a person can earn to keep the wolf from the door, so to speak.

In our struggle for existence little thought is given to health and its effect upon our everyday efficiency. People say, "well I haven't the time" and go on urging their wearied, rundown bodies to work by sheer force of will, until one day the system can no longer stand up under the strain and a general breakdown results which may keep the worker away from the job for weeks or even months.

It was just such an experience that occurred to Frank Mulvey, a popular U. M. C. worker, who resides at 121 High street. It started with a pain in the back which was a kidney or rheumatic sign and though he fought against it continually, it finally wore him down until he was forced to lay off and stay in bed. In a thrilling statement, Mr. Mulvey tells how life was relieved in an astonishingly quick time through the use of the remarkable new medicine "Wildberbs." Mr. Mulvey said: "I suffered with a fierce backache that felt like someone was sticking a knife into me. First I tried salves and rubbing lotions, but they did no good. Then hot towels, cold towels, pills and laxatives came next, and failed to touch the spot. The constant twinges of pain made it almost impossible for me to attend to my work but I simply had to do it because there was the rent to pay and the 'kiddies' to feed. Then I began the use of 'Wildberbs.' After the 4th or 5th dose the backache began leaving me. My digestion must have been in poor shape without my knowing it for I am astonished with the ease with which my stomach takes to almost anything I eat now. I consider that 'Wildberbs' is a wonderful medicine and it is remarkable how quickly it helped me when all others failed. I unhesitatingly recommend it to all others suffering from backache and stomach trouble the way I did. The backache has vanished and that old tired feeling has entirely left me. I feel that I am fast becoming my old self again and expect to be back on the job in a few days."

T. S. Jackson, Dr. Pierce's Health Expert, who is daily meeting increasing throngs of Bridgeport people at Hindle's Main and state streets store, from 9 a. m. to 9 p. m., and taking the blood pressure of all who desire it, free, said:

"It is very gratifying to me to meet so many business men and skilled workers as I have here in Bridgeport. Wildberbs (full extract) is a medicine that appeals to men and women of logic and reason, because the action of the medicine is founded on reasonable principles. It is Nature's own medicine. It gets results in a natural way and results obtained in this way are lasting results."—Adv.
